

Source:#flo #ref #ret #disorganized #incomplete

---

1 | Here. We. Go.

- Why does war exist? Are they products of failure in other realms or logical products of global systems?
  - war has heavy economic benefits – war is heavily profitable
  - war for resources, war for morality – “this is right, and we will fight for it!”
  - also war for resources disguised as war for morality
- What would be required to put an end to war?
  - heavily dependent on the war, and the nature of the war.
  - very important question. one side conceding would do it.
  - running out of financial resource? end by exhaustion?
  - wars end when one side gives up (not when one side wins).
- Is there such a thing as a just (or good, ethical, righteous) war? Why/why not?
  - this is not a question i am prepared to answer while still debating the very meaning of ‘good.’
  - utilitarian perspective, if the war reduces overall pain or suffering (bad?) then yes, it is good.
  - if going to war is the choice of the people, ..
  -

**In groups, discuss and compare your ideas on the origins of war, the possibilities of its eradication

Look for points of agreement and disagreement and be prepared to share.****